

In the Buddhist religion, the Frangipane flower symbolizes immortality, probably because the tree will produce new blooms even after it is uprooted. In Laos, the Frangipane tree is considered sacred – so sacred that they are planted outside every Buddhist temple. These trees live for hundreds of years. In the ancient Indian healing science of Ayurveda, the oil of the Frangipane is considered a warming oil and is thought to be effective in treating fear, anxiety and insomnia. It is also used to treat tremors.
